

Reggie Danyel Robertson

October 1, 1979 - April 3, 2018

Reggie Danyel Robertson was born to Thomas C. Robertson and Phyllis M. Brown on October 1, 1979 in Independence, LA. Reggie was one of seven siblings. He was the second child to be born with the crippling disease Sickle Cell Anemia. Reggie was normally an upbeat happy person despite his challenges. He often did things to make people laugh. He always possessed a strong determination to complete tasks despite the Sickle Cell symptoms being a constant challenge. A great deal of his time was spent in hospital and doctor offices. One memory is how he often spoke about how he convinced the doctor to allow him to attend school for testing so he could graduate with his class. He had to wear masks to do so, but he did. He was a proud graduate of Amite High School. He vowed to be a good provider and spoiled his only child Regyana along with his nieces and nephews. He will forever hold a place in their hearts for being the uncle who always was sneaking them treats. He leaves to cherish his precious memories his mother, Phyllis(Jamison) Brown, his daughters, Regyana Robertson and Xabria Williams. Their mother, the love of his life, LaShanta Williams. Six brothers, Thomas(LaChaka) Robertson, Rundy Robertson, Terry Edwards, Chris Edwards, Timothy Edwards, and Bryan Edwards. Five sisters, Nicol Thomas, Tara(Tharon)Lindsay, Sharon Robertson, Cangela Robertson and Angela Edwards. A Great Aunt, Veenie English, four aunts Evon(Donald) Williams, Willistine Newman, Alice Bacon, Classie Spears and a host of nieces, nephews, and cousins. He is preceded in death by his maternal grandparents, Willie Thomas and Josephine Hughes. His paternal grandparents, Thomas Robertson Sr. and Alice Robertson. His father, Thomas Robertson Jr. His sister, Willie Robertson, and his brothers, Andrew Thomas and Thomas (Tom Tom) Baham.
